North Texans can now scream for Graeter's ice cream

Graeter's has been around since 1870, but the Cincinnati-made ice cream has only recently entered the North Texas market. Unless you're from Ohio or follow Oprah's favorite things, the Graeter's name may not mean anything to you. But sample the ice cream, and you could easily become a fan.

If you like ice cream on your blueberry pie, imagine the pie in your ice cream — that's the Elena's Blueberry Pie flavor. A percentage of sales profits funds research for a cure for pediatric brain cancer.

Other innovative flavors include Peanut Butter Chip, Black Raspberry Chip and a seasonal Strawberry Chip. Graeter's chalks up its success to use of ingredients such as cane sugar, hormone-free cream and Madagascar vanilla beans. Pints sell for $4.99 at Kroger supermarkets.
