

years of experience in conducting archaeology in Tennessee and is the author of a number of articles and books. Appointed Director of the McClung Museum in 1990, Chapman's focus shifted from archaeology to making the Museum a prominent University and community asset.

Dr. Chapman is Chairman of the Tennessee Archaeological Advisory Council; he also serves on several boards in the Knoxville area including The Arts and Culture Alliance of Greater Knoxville, Senior Citizens Home Assistance Service, Knox County Library Foundation, Sequoyah Birthplace Museum, Knoxville Symphony, and the Thompson Cancer Survival Center Foundation. He is a member of the Rotary Club of Knoxville and Leadership Knoxville, Class of 1992.

Cooking Up a Cure

Two local Tellico Village clubs, Tellico Riders and Village Vettes, have joined forces in the battle to find a cure for pediatric brain cancer. For the second year in a row the club members will contribute their best recipes to publish a cookbook. The "Taste of Tellico Volume 2" will feature all types of main dishes. The cookbook is the second in a series of cookbooks. The first "Taste of Tellico" appetizer cookbook was published in 2009 and was a tremendous success. The books are unique because they bring together a collection of local Tellico residents' favorite, no-fail recipes to create a compilation of cuisine's "Greatest Hits."

The cookbooks went on sale in September and are available through any member of the clubs or by email at jody.desserich@thecurestartsnow.org. The books will also be available in October and November at the Yacht Club lobby prior to various club meetings (just in time for holiday gift giving).

The proceeds from the sale of cookbooks will be donated to The Cure Starts Now Foundation, which funds research for pediatric brain cancer. The charity was inspired by Elena Desserich, the six year old granddaughter of Jody and Dennis Desserich, who are long-time Tellico residents. Elena lost her battle with brain cancer in 2007.

The Cure Starts Now Foundation has grown to include 19 chapters worldwide and has been instrumental in funding over $400,000 in cancer research. Many experts believe that the lessons we learn from fighting pediatric cancer may in fact provide us the critical first step in winning the battle against all forms of cancer, both pediatric and adult. The Cure Starts Now Foundation has been featured on CNN, The Today Show, Good Morning America, People Magazine, and Inside Edition. For more information, go to www.thecurestartsnow.org.

Generous sponsorship by Granite Transformations, The Grove Wine and Spirits and 72 Wine and Spirits have underwritten the printing costs and allowed 100% all book sales to go directly to the charity.

Over the past three years, Tellico residents have raised over $20,000 for The Cure Starts Now Foundation. Jody Desserich, Tennessee chapter director of The Cure Starts Now Foundation, said, "The support and generosity of the residents of Tellico Village has just been amazing."
